

Management Domian Task

1. The event has started, but audience engagement is very low (minimal interaction, low energy). What real-time actions will you take to improve engagement and participation?
2. Your event content is highly technical, but a large portion of the registered participants are beginners. How will you structure the event so that both groups find value?
3. Your event venue is changed 12 hours before the event to a smaller auditorium, reducing capacity from 500 to 200 seats. You currently have 480 registrations. What steps will you take to manage registrations, communication, and attendee experience?
4. Different teams (design, tech, logistics) are working with conflicting information, leading to confusion and delays. How will you quickly resolve the miscommunication and align everyone?
5. You planned an event with a ₹1,50,000 budget:
 - ₹80,000 expected sponsorship
 - ₹70,000 registrations

Now:

- Sponsorship drops to ₹40,000
- Registrations at ₹45,000

You have multiple options:

- Reduce prize pool
- Cut marketing
- Increase ticket price
- Approach last-minute sponsors
- Reduce scale of event

What combination of actions would you take and why? Prioritize long-term impact over short-term fixes.

6. You're organizing a workshop:
 - Expected: 150 attendees
 - Price range: ₹100–₹500How do you decide pricing? What factors matter most?

7. Your college event is 7 days away, but registrations are below expectations due to low visibility, uncoordinated promotion, and last-minute confusion among team members. Considering limited time and resources, how would you strategically improve registrations and ensure smooth event execution while maintaining participant satisfaction?

Explain your solution in 50–100 words.

8. Scenario: Your club is hosting a 24-hour design-a-thon and wants to maximize registrations through social media promotion. Write an engaging LinkedIn or Twitter post that effectively attracts participants.

Requirements: The content must include a creative event name, a unique tagline, and the entire post must be within 280 characters.

9. If your event is unable to secure the expected sponsorships even after multiple outreach attempts, how would you ensure the event still runs successfully without compromising quality and participant experience?

Explain your solution in 50–100 words.

10. A keynote guest confirms attendance just two days before the event, but travel, accommodation, and schedule coordination are still pending. With limited time, how would you ensure a smooth and professional guest experience without affecting other event arrangements?

Explain your solution in 50–100 words.
